

We are holding our annual

Heritage Open Day

Saturday 13th September between 11am and 2pm as part of Birmingham Heritage Open Week

Everyone is welcome to come and look around, whether this is your first visit, you have a past connection with us or you are a regular visitor.

The church is a good example of the Queen Anne style and the only one in Birmingham completed during her reign.

It was designed or influenced by Sir William Wilson.
The transepts and chancel were seamlessly added in the 1860s to give the building its cruciform shape.

Originally Job Marston's Chapel, it became Hall Green Parish Church in 1907 and then the Church of the Ascension in 1954

Friendly volunteers will be on hand to show you around and there will be a display of photographs and other materials of interest

There will be booklets about the history of the church available to buy at £3 each

Refreshments (tea, coffee, squash, biscuits) are provided free of charge
